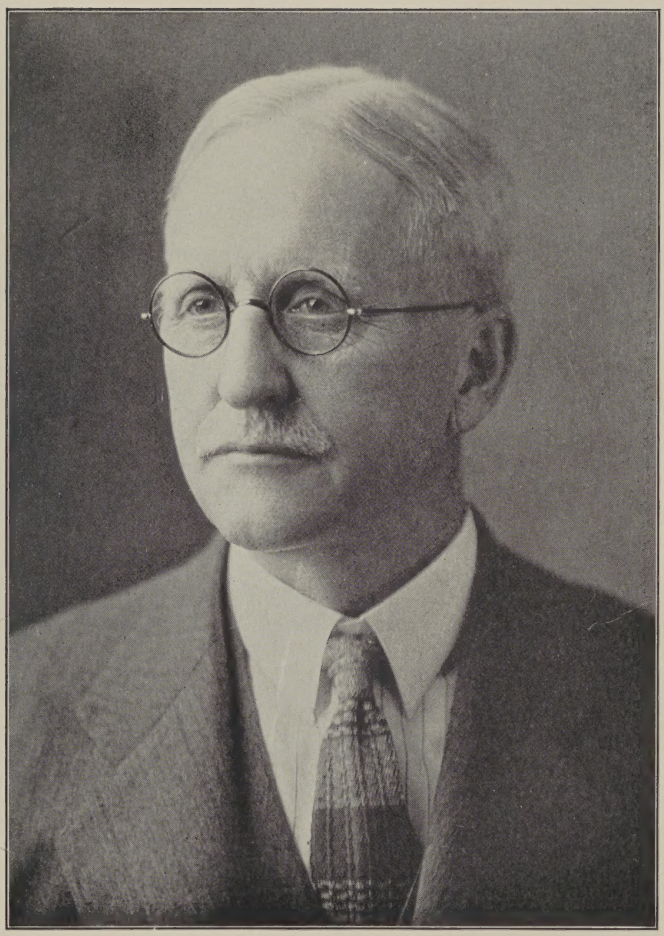
CAMBRIDGE HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOL

Mr. Cleveland

Mr. Cleveland will long be remembered by the class of 1937 as a wise and understanding counsellor and as a helpful and sympathetic friend. To our headmaster, we look with gratitude and appreciation for four years of pleasant contact and cheerful help.



LESLIE L. CLEVELAND
Headmaster

Dedication

TO

Mr. Bramhall

To our senior master, Mr. Bramhall, we dedicate our Year Book. He has been a loyal friend of our senior year. We can never forget his sincere interest in our affairs; his understanding; sympathetic advice; and genial friendliness, all of which have helped us so much.

THOMAS LONG BRAMHALL

Assistant Headmaster

Thomas Long Bramhall.

Prologue

"All the world's a stage."

The moment so long awaited had at last arrived. In awed silence we of the Class of 1937 came together to take our parts in a more important drama than any we had yet known. To an undiscerning eye that drama was vastly different from the pageant of a century ago. The manners and speech of 1837 would seem quaint and even absurd to a modern audience, yet the meaning behind the performance and ours is essentially the same. The desire for approval and success prevails among the youth of all times, and in this respect the young men and women of 1837 were no exception. So did we of 1937 desire earnestly to win approval and applause, especially from that part of the audience who had our welfare closest at heart.

As Freshmen, we had merely understudied the upper-classmen, admiring the poise and surety with which they played their parts. In our Sophomore year our aims and ambitions were definitely established, and we were working toward a specified end. When our Junior year had arrived, we knew our fellow-players well, the outstanding stars were firmly established in their own niches of fame, and all, whether gifted actors or not, had learned that generous cooperation is the most important factor to be considered in making the play a perfect whole.

Then at last we were Seniors. We were wiser, more mature, more confident in ourselves and our abilities, more determined to realize the high hopes placed in us; and we were especially eager to face the glorious new future which loomed, with intriguing nearness, just beyond the footlights.

In Memoriam

MISS GERTRUDE B. ROGERS

The pupils and teachers of the Cambridge High and Latin School have lost a loyal, generous friend, and a brilliant, inspiring teacher. Miss Rogers was known for her quick wit, her intellectual ability and her cheerful, courageous selfishness. She was active in the school and in her community, willingly giving her aid to any worthy cause.

She will not soon be forgotten, and her place can not be easily filled.

GEORGE F. RITTER

We who knew Mr. Ritter well were shocked at his sudden death last March. There was a feeling of emptiness and loneliness when Mr. Ritter did not occupy his accustomed place in his classes, for he was more than merely a teacher; he was leader and friend as well. Mr. Ritter had always maintained a friendly informal atmosphere with his associates, pupils and teachers, and always gave unsparingly of himself. His generous, sincere help, and his devotion to his work, will long be remembered by all who knew him.

THE TAPESTRY

The first decisive strands the masters weave
To guard it from our awkward, unskilled touch,
Lest we, impatient, should destruction wreak
Upon its fragile form. They guide our hands
As, eager to commence the life-long task,
Our fingers tremble to direct the thread;
They let us start afresh when we are wrong.
Now our apprenticeship is served at last.
We can no longer sanction false attempts.
Our patterns must be flawless now, or we Become the victims of a general scorn.
Some tapestries of gold with deeds of love
Broidered upon them will be works of art;
Red-wrought, some blazon feats of fortitude;
And others, purple, bear the mark of pomp.
One fabric proffered may be ebony,
The hue of shame, with pattern indistinct:
We pray that ours be not a baleful shade,
When all is spread before the judge's throne
As Time displays the finished tapestries.
Let us at this fair dawning of our life
Pledge solemnly to keep our hand-craft pure.

MARGARET WHOWELL, '37

THE SEA OF DARKNESS

Its waters beat on lonely shores
Through years of darkness long ago;
What lay beyond its mystic bars
No one could dream or know.
For Europe's toil-worn weary heart
Still forced itself and hope apart.
They could not know that this dread sea
Filled with imagined mystery
Caressed a fairer land.

The Sea of Darkness holds us still Unchanged throughout the years
The sea made up of hate and pride
And sordid human fears.
Yet we in blindness do not see
That love and truth could make us free.
We find no beauty as we live
But only seek what life can give
Forgetting God and loving strife
Oh is there nothing more to life
Than prejudice and greed?

3.

When will men rise above their fears?
How many useless tragic tears
Must fall in vain before the day
When hope and truth will lead the way
Across the sea to light?

Freshmen are usually pictured as odd individuals, embarking upon their high school career with a good supply of shyness and diffidence, as well as a remarkable realization of the responsibilities to come.

Diffidence? Awareness of responsibility?

Not us!

We were a cocky, self-confident group of grammar school graduates with our first diploma ribbons and our grown up airs. Long pants and high heels rushed about the corridors and made much ado about showing that they were not in the least awed by the poise of the seniors, or aware of the condescensions of the sophomores.

For after all, the year previous, we had been the patriarchs of the grammar schools, the "big shots" of the eighth grades, and that one sweet year of being the all important class had done dangerous things to our heads. It was not easy suddenly to adapt ourselves to the inferior position of Freshmen. We were not eager to surrender the old power, and it required our whole Freshman year to teach us that we were not all that we hoped we were. As Sophomores, we were slightly subdued, quieted by the realization of our true position in the high school scheme.

But, we were only slightly subdued. Something more was wanting to complete the job. And the something more was study—hic, haec, hoc, congruent triangles, and the beginning of wisdom; the fickleness of the Gauls, parallel lines, and the seeds of knowledge; "a-s-d-f, space", the mystery of the typewriter, and the efficiency of the office; "debit and increase in asset, credit a corresponding decrease", and the responsibilities of the business world; Dickens and Hawthorne and Stevenson, and "a general truth takes the present tense."

Heads bent in study, while we were so absorbed, we looked up one late Spring day, and found it was June and the end of another year.

The year had been kind to us.

For when we returned to our desks, we had forgotten to worry about our importance. We had real worries, the thrill, the flamboyancy, the splash and color of our politics. Hail the young politicians! Blackboards were confiscated. Art screamed in the corridors. Nomination papers! "Vote for me, and I'll vote for you." The ready smile! "Everybody's my pal." The young politicians!

Bow to ye socialites. The awkwardness and deliberate, noisy nonchalance of the freshmen were dreams of the past at the Junior Prom, where self-assured, poised beings, groomed and coifed, gowned and tuxedoed, serenely socialized and danced, to waltz time and to swing time.

In retrospect, we smile. The irony of it all. How we yearned for the importance of Seniority. And when it came, in the mad rush of the senior year, we were too busy to stop to quaff the cup of high responsibility.

We sat at assemblies and the atmosphere was charged with words: "credits", "candidacy for a diploma", "honor student", "hard facts and cold realities of life", "college boards", "after graduation."

Time stole Mercury's wings.

April blended into May.

In the last lap, our themes became philosophical, took on a new note of maturity. Poetry was not all priggish. With Browning and with Keats, we walked; with Tennyson and Shelley. Into the sunset of our high school days, we walked—into the sunrise of our life.

SENIOR DRAMA CAST

THE SENIOR DRAMA

On Friday evening, February 5, we were fortunate in attending the fine performance of the Senior Drama. The play so splendidly portrayed with outstanding success, was Charlotte Bronte's—"Jane Eyre." Our Jane Eyre was the lovely Ruth Gray who made the little governess live again in the minds of the appreciative audience. Her performance was really remarkable. A pupil with exceptional talent was selected as leading man. Harlan Smith a perfect Mr. Rochester, with admirable skill, introduced us into the life of an English gentleman of the early nineteenth century. From the moment that Jane arrives at Thornfield to instruct Rochester's ward until the final reunion of the lovers, we experienced the joys and trials of these two people. As Mrs. Fairfax, the hustling housekeeper, Shirley Frim drew the hearty approval of the entire audience, Edward Greenberg, through his excellent characterization of the despicably weak Richard Mason, aroused such contempt in us that we almost overlooked his unusual talents. As the stately Lady Ingram and her beautiful daughter, Blanche, Mary Burke and Phyllis Sheridan were excellent. Iris Benthale exhibited her versatility when she entertained us most delightfully as Adele, the adorable French child, who possessed not only nimble feet, but also an entertaining singing voice. Another skillful portrayal was given by Mary Sullivan whose Grace Poole, the highly independent maid caused the audience loudly to acclaim her. At the most exciting moment in the play, the marriage scene in Act 3, we encountered two fine actors. Willard Ramsey, as Mr. Wood, the clergyman, had his wedding service interrupted by Briggs, a London solicitor, who was none other than Thomas Adams. Between them, Willard and Tom succeeded in making this tense scene the highlight of the play. Perhaps the most difficult task of the play fell upon the shoulders of Catherine Cavanagh. Hers was the problem of exchanging her own charm for the honors of insane wife. Needless to say, "Kitty" came through with flying colors. It is a tradition that the Senior Drama performances of the Cambridge High and Latin School always reflect honor and praise upon our school. The high standard and exceptional success of every type of dramatic endeavor in our school is due to the tireless efforts of Miss Lillian Hartigan. Miss Hartigan is a genius in her work, but more than that—her friendliness, her willingness to help us at all times have commanded the respect and love of all who have been fortunate enough to associate with her.

DRAMATIC CLUB OFFICERS

Joseph Murphy, Rita Doherty, Miss Hartigan, Phyllis Sheridan.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club of Cambridge High and Latin School has had the busiest year of its existence. The club elected as its officers: Rita Doherty, President, Joseph Murphy, Vice-President, Phyllis Sheridan, Treasurer, and Constance Gillespi as Secretary.

The club established a new precedent this year in the form of a fall entertainment which was called a Shakesperean Afternoon; the members presented scenes from A Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, and A Midsummer Night's Dream.

The next big event in the life of the club was Talent Night, in which talented pupils throughout the school participated. A melodramatic pantomime, Wild Nell, the Pet of the Plains, was presented by the members of the club.

While these events were taking place, classes on make-up were held.

The Debating Club along with the Dramatic Club sponsored a lecture given by Mr. Maurice Leahy on "The Spirit of Twentieth Century."

By carrying off first honors in the New England Conservatory Contest, the club showed its ability in competition. On this occasion, Victoria Regina was presented.

Following in the footsteps of the world, the club has become radio-minded and has presented three programs over station WMEX.

In order to complete the year a Dramatic Club Night was held in which a group of plays were presented.

The club wishes to extend its gratitude to Miss Lillian Hartigan, Miss Margaret Breau, and Miss Harriet Johnson, whose help has carried the club forward.

PHYLLIS SHERIDAN

Due to the many BRIGHT LIGHTS of Cambridge, the opening night of "Mirth, Music, and Madness", the most brilliant show on the Great White Way, was devoted to these C.H.L.S. genii (pardon our Latin).

Overwhelmed by our curiosity, we grabbed our "oper'y" glasses, peered over the edge of the box and glimpsed Norman Paster, that great eye-specialist who, with Dr. Ruth Crozier, performed a successful operation on that inveterate movie goer (who has ruined her beautiful brown orbs thus) Jo Hitron. Jo never misses a picture starring Ed Greenberg, Phyllis Sheridan, Ruth Gray, Ray St. Martin, or that beauteous cinema flame, Betty Thorne. In the third row, we saw Dutchy Glacken, that 1947 Jim Farley, with his pals Paul Good, Mayor of Cambridge; John Murphy, Glacken's New England campaign manager; Al Roscio, Alvin Allen, Mel Ponte, and Warren Hardy, his incomparable assistants. Practically rubbing elbows with this group were his bitter rivals, Leo Manley and his right-hand men, Frank Norcia, Dick Parrow, Al Arrand, and Bill Corcoran.

In the adjoining box, the faculty of C.H.L.S. looked strangely familiar. Among them, we saw our old friend, Bob Roth with a look of authority on his face suggestive of a headmaster; Harriet Yankos, the junior dean; Gene Lovett, the football coach who has been responsible for the many victories the deah ol' team has won; Helen Cauchon, head of the French Department; Bob Landrigan, the brilliant Math head; and Lorraine Rano, the head of the Commercial Dept. And we mustn't forget Angelica Anastos who is now exerting her authority over those poor students who take Latin.

Just then, the footlights (those heatless electric light bulbs conceived by the fertile mind of the great inventor, Ranulf W. Gras and made in the factories of Charles Woodman where the excellent scientists John Lyons, Harry Wasserman, George Wiech, and Thomas Watkins are turning out the wonders of the age) dimmed, and the asbestos curtain rolled skyward.

The "Mirth, Music, and Madness" cast was a tribute to Cambridge talent. In the cast were Tom Adams, Rita Doherty, Mary Burke, Harlan Smith, Kitty Cavanagh, Joe Murphy, and Barbara Woodfin to supply the heavy dramatics; while in the chorus of gorgeous girls we spotted Evelyn Nevins, Louise Barrett, Mary Hall, Lillian Hand, Helen Burns, Mildred Sheridan, Vivian Glassman, Barbara Craib, Clarice Lecours, Libbie Flax, Zenona Hacian, and Janet Krevis.

Although the music, ably directed by Bronislaus Jezerski, was so good that we could hardly give attention to anything else, we did note that the scenery did honor to its creator, Ann Graustein, who insisted on having the best designers of the day, Almeida, Jozwicki, Jeanette Cote, Regan and George.

After an exciting musical first act, we reached for our programs and prepared to amuse ourselves by scanning the "ads." Imagine our surprise to find a whole page devoted to "Salon de Paris—Ruth Brooks, Mgr." The advertisement (one could hardly imagine that the "Salon de Paris" had an ad) showed lovely models, among them Sylvia Kaufman, Mary Cabral, Joyce Mahoney, Helen Suttie, Christine McLeod, Gertrude Flanagan, Helena McDonald, and Jennie Sterpinski, displaying the latest gowns from Molyneux, whose famous assistant is none other than Irene Andelman.

A huge bear on skates attracted our eyes, and we discovered that the Boston Bruins were playing at Madison Square Garden the next night. Speaking of hockey, we found that C.H.L.S. is well represented by Wally Boudreau, Tom—the "White Flash", Ray Cass, George Kelley, Norman Crew, Dick Row (who still sports a little football on the side), Don O'Connell, and well of all things—Joe Hayes, the able manager.

Well, well, well, if there isn't Elliott Shaw over there! He runs the New York Times now. Betty Sugarman and Dot Starr edit the women's page while Margaret Whowell fills "Ye Poete's Corner" with sweet verse, and Esther O'Connell keeps the whole thing running smoothly.

The lights dimmed again, and we settled back to enjoy another act of "Mirth, Music and Madness."

During the intermission which followed, we strolled out into the lounge and saw Adele Church, the president of the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Struggling Students" with her assistants in this worthy cause, Doris Banne, Eleanor Davis, Mary Sullivan, Mary Good, and Anna Westcott. Rambling about, we caught sight of Olga Sousa, the authoress of the current "best-seller"; Nat Pierce—just back from the West as a Math missionary to those poor deprived Westerners; Jerry Rossignol, the French wizard; John Roberts, driving the Navy wild chasing chorus girls instead of gunboats; Shine and Marimn of math fame; Mary Paiva, Dot Oliver, and Edith O'Hearn whose "We-Do-The-Homework-You-Go-To-The-Movies" agency is having a boom in Cambridge; and Christine Paul, the famous novelist.

Just before the act, we hustled back to our box and across the way, noted that gracious hostess, Carolyn Wood, whose party included the charming ladies, Marguerite Bisson, Betty Ingalls, Janet Kelso, Ann Linton, Lucille Kelley; also Joe Coughlan, the successful businessman, Dick Eddy "the best-dressed man in New York", Edward Maher, still the "genial man", Lincoln Hanson, whose camera clicked incessantly through the play, and Jack McLaren and Sonny Conant whose antics would give Jack McGloin, the radio comedian, serious competition.

The curtain for the third act arose, and we were more than pleasantly surprised to hear the soaring voices of George Cohen and Mildreth Partenope caressing our shell-like-ear—or is that ears? They were augmented by Shirley Frim, Agnes Linskey, and Anne Wooldridge at the finale.

The cast took six—mind you six—curtain calls, and we all clapped until our hands ached. Of course, we didn't leave right away, but hung around to see if there were any other C.H.L.S. grads there. And we saw so many that you'd think that nobody was anybody in New York unless he came from Cambridge, which is undoubtedly true.

Over in the corner was Betty Harney, president of Sargent, talking with Bessie Makris and Frannie Brown; in another we spotted Ed Waitkus and Tim Murphy, understudies to Fred Astaire with their dancing partners Connie Conant and Muriel Rollins. Coming down the stairs were Iris Benthale, Flossie Hazelton, Fred Whoriskey and Domenico Auciello whose play will open soon on Broadway. With them was Bob Crowley, the "brain trust" from Washington.

We eavesdropped on Helen Christopher, Vera Choruzi, Mary Rodrigues, Veronica Tasonis and Sarah Serson, and found them earnestly discussing—of all things—world peace, and the advisability of introducing a neutrality bill into the House at the present time. Oh, well—it's no business of ours, anyway.

We glimpsed Maxwell Swartz with a party including Natalie Wasserman, Sidney Factor, Dorothy McCarron, Henry Nicholls, and Bernice Krasnoff arguing with the doorman; Leslie Knight, Catherine Brooks, Evelyn Cox, Myra Miller and Doris Lucie sporting the latest from Paris; Anna Mullane also recently returned from Paris whither she went in her capacity as buyer for a large department store; Burt Cutler, Bill Dynan, and good ol' Orestes Righellis giving them keen competition with the new fad of scarlet evening ties (ouch); the Sweet girls, Jane and Judith, attractive as ever and living up to their names—they now own a perfectly scrumptious candy shop on Fifth Avenue, no less; Elsie Brady of Tin Pan Alley whose latest song is first on the Hit Parade; Jo and Theresa Donatio, the dancing twins; Frances Ford and Marguerite Gilligan comparing notes with Mable Noble who has just returned from a West coast screen test; and so forth, and so on—

We finally got so dizzy counting the GREAT ONES of Cambridge, that we flung our wraps about us, flew out the door into a bus, and paid our—well! for heavens sake, if it wasn't good ol' Bernie Spitzer driving the bus!

THE REVIEW

On starting its fifty-first year as an active paper the Review was conscious, not only of an outstanding record established while scholastic publications were comparatively new, but of continual progress in the journalistic methods of second schools. True to this spirit of advancement, the "Review" has developed new characteristics. The covers of recent issues reflect through their novelty and color the general impression of originality and freshness which the subject matter of the entire issue aims to convey. Among the new features are interviews, popularity polls, and entertaining quizzes.

Today the "Review" ranks high among publications of its kind, having won a medal in the annual competition of the Columbia Scholastic Association in New York and First Class Honor Rating from the National Scholastic Press Association, Department of Journalism, University of Minnesota. The volume of subscriptions this year has exceeded that of many former years. These indications of success are the result of the cooperative spirit of the students and the generous guidance of Miss Bligh, whose expert advice has taught us much.

We hope that in the future the pupils of Cambridge High and Latin School will continue to realize the value of their high ranking school paper and contribute constantly to its well-being.

The Phi Club, the senior class organization of the High School's Annex is a non-exclusive, non-selective school organization as befitting a public school. Merely being in the senior class qualifies a student for membership.

To the officers of the Phi Club is assigned the responsibility for intra and extra mural activities of the High School's Annex, and under their efficient guidance a very successful Talent Night was presented in January. The closing activity of the Phi Club this year will be the annual dinner dance held on the roof garden of one of Boston's leading hotels. The officers of current year are:

DURRELL DEBATING SOCIETY

The Durrell Debating Society, under the direction of Miss Breau has, during the past year, continued to give those of the school who are interested in speaking and argumentation, an opportunity to take part in active debate.

At the meetings, those who were best qualified for interscholastic debating were recognized by their aptitude at extemporaneous speaking and their readiness to express their viewpoints and convictions in open forum.

Two varsity teams were selected to debate other schools in this state. On the affirmative, were Harry Wasserman and Mary Buckley; on the negative, Morris Burk and Sutton Munro.

Besides competing with local high schools, these two teams were entered in the National Forensic contest held in April at Charlton and at Fall River. In debating, Cambridge High and Latin ranked third among the twenty-two schools entered.

Apart from the activity of the varsity team, members of the club have conducted debates among themselves, some of which were heard over local radio networks.

The officers of the Debating Society this year, have been:

President .....Harry Wasserman
Vice-President .....Mary Buckley
Secretary .....Katherine Monahan

THE CHESS CLUB

The Chess Club, this year, has had the most successful season of its existence. Out of the seventeen matches which were played, not one was lost and but one was tied. This tie, with Brookline, was later avenged by a nine to one victory.

Two matches of simultaneous chess were played; one with Mr. Franklin Sanborn, Secretary of the Massachusetts State Chess Association and the other with Mr. Reuben Grass of the Harvard Law School. Only one member was able to outwit Mr. Grass.

Among the schools beaten were: Rindge, Lynn, English, Lowell, Salem, Brookline, Roxbury, Boston English, Boston Latin, Waltham, Franklin Union, and Huntington Day School.

Admirable records were amassed by Stanley Ramonas, Walter Graham, Bernie Spitzer, Alfred Jozwicki, Joseph Coughlan, and in fact by all the members.

Several of the members are graduating, but there are enough Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen to insure a successful season next year.

THE SCIENCE FORUM

The Science Forum, formerly the Chemistry Club has attempted, this year, to increase the scope and variety of the society by including the interests of Chemistry, Physics, and Biology.

The work of the club was supervised by the science teachers, aided by the following staff officers:

President .....Harry Wasserman
Vice-Presidents.....Richard Eddy and John Lyons
Secretary .....John Roberts
Treasurer .....Henry Freniere

The program and film committees have arranged the meetings of the club providing for entertainment in the form of films, lectures and demonstrations.

The members have visited a few of the important industrial plants in this vicinity, including Lever Brothers soap manufacturing plant, the Christian Science Publishing House, and the Carter Ink Company. These trips were found to be enlightening as well as enjoyable.

During this year the aim of the club has been to promote and establish an active interest in the scientific advancements of today.

FOOTBALL

With only a few veterans to work with, Coach Sheehan moulded a strong team for the opening game with Somerville. Latin was behind at the half by a score of 20-0. In the second half, the team showed that it was one of the scrappiest elevens ever to represent Latin, holding Somerville scoreless and scoring two touchdowns. Glacken picked up a punt blocked by Don O'Connell and raced 40 yards for a touchdown; Gene Lovett snared Wally Boudreau's pass and weaved his way through the Somerville backfield for the second touchdown. Boudreau's long, high punts successfully staved off the Somerville threats. The other highlights of Latin's season were their victories over Brookline, Nashua, B. C. High and their city rivals, Rindge.

Although we were rarely able to put our complete first team on the field, due to injuries, we had our best season in fifteen years winning four games and losing six, finishing second to Newton in the Suburban League.

Glacken and Boudreau, our formidable passing offense, were selected for the all-scholastic team; Capt. Row, John Marimn, and Fred Coolen received honorable mention on the all-star team.

George Kelley filled in very well when Boudreau broke his shoulder. Don O'Connell, Paul Good, Dick Gayne and Ray Guild were dependable in the line. Our most consistent ground gainer was Fred Coolen. Mort Buckley, although a hard runner, did most of the difficult work as a blocking back. For his fine show of ability and effectiveness as a running guard, Dick Gayne was elected captain of the 1938 team.

BASEBALL

Back Row: Lovett, Bradley, Laing, Gardner, Campbell, Coffey, Sottile, Randall.
Middle Row: Krasnoff, Asst. Manager; Liakos, Buckley, Cass, Sheehan, Shea, Glacken, Brennan, Powers, O'Neil, Galligan, Hart, Gracia, Finnegan, Asst. Manager.

BASEBALL

With his entire pitching staff gone, Coach James Foley's hopes for a championship team are rather low. However, Latin's offense will be very powerful, with Gene Lovett, Eddie Waitkus, Bob Bouché, and Joe Sheehan expected to do most of the hitting. Defensively, the infield is very strong, with Jimmy Lawrence at third base, George Kelley at short stop, Cliff Robillard at second, and "Lefty" Waitkus at first. Captain Bob Bouché behind the plate is experienced in handling pitchers and is adept in picking runners off the bases.

The team has a large group of outfielders, with John Shaughnessy, Gene Lovett, and Joe Sheehan in the starting line-up and with Angelo Grassia, Wally Boudreau, Dutchy Glacken, Mort Buckley, and Bob Sheehan as substitutes.

John Marimn, Horace Roewer, Dick Hooker, Joe O'Neill, Leo Galligan, Francis Bradley, and Mike Shea are expected to do most of the pitching. Roewer and Hooker seem to be the best of the lot, and the others may improve.

The lettermen will probably be Captain Bob Bouché, Wally Boudreau, Mort Buckley, George Kelley, Angelo Grassia, Jimmy Lawrence, Gene Lovett, Dutchy Glacken, Cliff Robillard, Ed. Waitkus, John Shaughnessy, Bob Sheehan, Dick Hooker, Lefty Roewer, John Marimn, Mike Shea, Bob Regan, Leo Galligan, Joe O'Neill and Francis Bradley.

TRACK TEAM

Third Row: Spooner, Nixon, Doyle, O'Rourke, Hansen, Dupee, Gould, Haley, O'Brien, Guild.

TRACK

Coach Murphy will not have a large squad to work with, but a few of his runners look very good. If Captain Fred Coolen runs the dashes with the same speed that he showed on the gridiron, Mr. Murphy will have a consistent point winner. Dick Row regularly heads the half milers in their daily work outs, and should win a number of races.

A few new faces will appear on the track soon, Ray Guild and Dutchy Glacken, who are expected to win first and second places in each quarter-mile race with Glacken competing with Dick Row in the half-mile.

Since the awarding of letters is based on the number of points won individually, it cannot be predicted who will win letters, but Coolen, Row, Glacken, and Guild are sure to be among the number chosen as letter men.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Girls' Athletic Association is an organization for girls interested in social as well as athletic activities.

Miss Brown, faculty advisor, has given indispensable advice and assistance to the officers. The association has, therefore, under her able supervision, had a most outstanding season.

The first athletic honors of the year were gained by Phyllis Sheridan, and Betty Harney, when these two seniors won the tennis doubles championship.

On November eleventh the Freshman Party was held. The freshmen impersonated important actors and actresses. The first party of the season was a complete success.

At Thanksgiving the members of the association generously contributed food and clothing which was distributed to needy families of Cambridge.

The annual Boy Dance was held in the Commander Hotel, Friday, November 20. The dance was one of the most successful in years.

The Christmas party was held in the gymnasium December 22. Talented members entertained, and Santa Claus distributed candy.

In December the Girl Dance was held. There was a large attendance. Members both past and present had an enjoyable evening.

January 22 was the date of the costume party. The girls dressed in clothes of the "Gay Nineties" period.

Swimming has been held weekly in the Y.M.C.A. under the direction of Mr. Purdyne. The team has had a successful season.

The annual picnic, one of the important and most successful events of the year, is to be held Saturday, June 6.

This event marks the end of the 1936-37 year. At this time the old officers give way to the new.

SENIOR BASKETBALL TEAM

SENIOR BASKETBALL TEAM

The senior basketball team acquitted themselves creditably in all their games this year.

Although the team did not win every outside game, each defeat, as well as each victory was met with a fine spirit of sportsmanship by the entire team.

The Seniors defeated the Sophomores and the Juniors to gain the class championship and silver basketballs.

The basketballs were received by Sylvia Kaufman, Captain, Libbie Flax, Bessie Makris, Eleanor Payne, Betty Sugarman, Rita Doherty and Elizabeth Harney.

The scores of the inter-class games were:

Seniors, 14—Juniors, 12
Seniors, 17—Juniors, 7
Seniors, 13—Sophomores, 9
Seniors, 15—Sophomores, 10

VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

Back Row: Miss Brown, Sullivan, Russell, Makris.
Front Row: Shates, Rymsha, Harney, Kaufman, Flax, Doherty.

GIRLS VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

The varsity this year broke a precedent by electing Co-Captains: Sylvia Kaufman and Betty Harney.

Victories in all our games made this year a particular success. Credit for this is due to the fact that the girls forgetting individualities, developed strong team play.

Those who reserved their letters were: Sylvia Kaufman; Betty Harney; Bessie Makris; and Libbie Flax, seniors, and Jacqueline Russell, junior, and Helen Rymska and Helen Shates, sophomores.

The scores of the games were:

Cambridge, 14—Somerville, 12
Cambridge, 18—Melrose, 15
Cambridge, 24—Somerville, 14
Cambridge, 17—Graduates, 6

HOCKEY SQUAD

Middle Row: Driscoll, Mgr., Williams, White, Nickles, Mahoney, Powers, Sortile, Carter, Mgr., Murphy, Mgr.

HOCKEY

In spite of having a strong defense and the best passing, forward line in the league, Latin failed to live up to expectation, finishing in fourth place in the league. However, the team was always a threat; the cause of their defeats may be attributed mainly to weariness because of lack of capable substitutes. In each game, they outclassed the other team in both skating and passing, and frequently missed easy shots at critical moments. Latin set up a new record for goals scored in one game, scoring twelve goals against Belmont.

The Cantabs defeated Newton to begin the season and followed this by rolling up a huge score against Belmont. The highlight of the season was their defeat of Rindge after coming out of their slump, and then ending the season by tying Melrose, the only team to defeat the Stoneham champions.

Boudreau, Buckley, and Robillard were so outstanding that they were awarded positions on the all-scholastics team.

In the past season games, in which the All Stars defeated their Bay State rivals and the championship team from Montreal, the teamwork and all-around effectiveness of the Cambridge boys was outstanding.

In the regular season, Frank Briand and George Kelley showed fine ability, scoring consistently.

Three mainstays of the team-Captain-elect Mort Buckley finished second to the Stoneham ace, Cliff Thompson, in the race for scoring honors.

Although Phil Carey, a sophomore, had an unlucky year as goal tender, he showed ability, and should be brilliant in his next two years.

The lettermen are: Buckley, Briand, W. Boudreau, H. Boudreau, Robillard, Carey, Powers, Mahoney, Hines, Cass, Lawrence, White and Row.

BASKETBALL

Middle Row: Preston, Clark, Whelan, Coolen, O'Dwyer, Reardon, Coach Kozlowski.
First Row: Mr. Garrett Foley, Faculty Manager; Callahan, Grossi, Menez, Glacken, Sheehan, West, Walsh, Young.

BASKETBALL

Although nine of the 1936 Tech Tournament squad graduated, Coach Kozlowski succeeded in whipping together a fairly strong team, which had a far better season than the records show. Winning eight and losing nine games, the team's only real defeat was by Rindge when two of the players were injured. Every other losing game was closely contested, with Latin losing out in the final minute by one or two points. The highlights of Latin's season were their victories over Chelsea, a Tech Tournament Team, by a score of 19-to-11, and over Lawrence Academy's team, composed of ex-high school stars, by a score of 35 to 31.

Acting captain, John Marimn was the chief offensive threat, being one of the leading scorers in the suburban league. John could shoot baskets from almost impossible positions. "Dutchy Glacken" and Fred Stack had their good days, with "Dutchy" scoring 14 points against Lawrence Academy, and Fred scoring 12 against Somerville. Gene Lovett was a good defensive guard, and was very effective in getting the ball on rebound shots. Burt Cutler, Joe Menez and Harold West played consistently good ball as forwards, while Joe Sheehan played guard and center with equal ability.

The second team won most of their games, forming their offense around Ned O'Dwyer, "Diker" Doyle, and Milton Clark with elongated Bob King getting the center top consistently.

The lettermen are John Marimn, Gene Lovett, Francis Glacken, Fred Stack, Joe Menez, Harold West, Burton Cutler, and Mgr. "Red" Callahan.

We the class of 1937, having at least one sound mind among us, and being in possession of all our dubious faculties, do solemnly draw up this, our last Will and Testament, bequeathing:

(1) To the seniors, a volume of Emily Post to be consulted before assemblies in the hope of saving them from painful lectures.
(2) To the College Board braves, our unused rain-checks to seventh periods. May they find an economical use for them.
(3) To the sophomores, a secluded corner of the assembly hall where they may enjoy their importance, and yet keep from under the feet of the P.G.'s.
(4) To the habitually tardy, our battered but serviceable alarm clocks, which enabled us to arrive on the dot of 8:29 throughout our senior year.
(5) To those juniors who possess the power of reading above the lines, all the hard fought for knowledge in our old Virgils.
(6) To Miss McElroy and Mr. Bramhall, any student who can offer a new excuse for tardiness. We feel that ours are rather threadbare, and that originality might be welcome.
(7) To the would-be-ill, (may they live long and prosper) we gladly leave the new system of double dismissal notes.
(8) To Mr. Bramhall, a trust fund for that tragic day when his apple tree dies.
(9) To anyone who can wield it, an axe to kill that chicken which walked through our soup all year.
(10) To Mr. Cleveland, we leave more brilliant and more studious senior classes of which he may be more justly proud.
(11) To the oncoming seniors, Hope. May they begin the year with abundance. We feel they'll need it.

Thus having disposed of all our worldly possessions held most dear to us, even to this day of our departure in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, duly witnessed, we do solemnly sign the dotted line.

Epilogue

The curtain has come down on the last performance in our little theatre. The success or failure of the player, who has behind him four years rich in knowledge and experience, hangs in the balance.

The curtain comes down, only to lift again on a larger stage, before a more critical audience. But however exacting the audience, we shall find encouragement and faith in the precepts of loyalty and wisdom learned in the years just passed. The last rehearsal is over, left definitely behind, and it devolves upon each of us to show now that he has the ability to undertake with confidence and with high integrity that role, be it important or minor, that is assigned to him in the drama of mature life.

Success is, of course, still the prize role sought with eager heart and high hope by each beginner in the profession. But whether or not he achieves success depends not, as we often think, upon the erratic gifts of nature, but upon the earnestness and sincerity with which the aspirant himself undertakes his role. For true success is not a matter of fame and wealth; rather the wise critic holds with Browning that it is a matter of earnest striving (sometimes of unsuccessful striving) toward a high ideal:

"All I could never be,
All men ignored in me,
This, I was worth to God, whose wheel the pitcher shaped."
